

“There’s lots of scope for progression, which is great motivation to study”

Welcome future graduates!

I hope I can give you a helpful insight into working for Isosceles.

I have been at Isosceles for nearly six months, and my time has flown! Within my first month, I was already working with my first client, which required me to visit Isosceles’ office in Staines – this was an excellent opportunity to meet the team down south.

I now work with four different clients of varying sizes, which has proven a great way to develop skills in three different accounting systems and take responsibility for a range of tasks.

Paired with my CIMA studies outside of work, there is lots of scope for progression, which is great motivation to study to get the exams done. Despite having a maths degree, I have no exemptions from the CIMA exams and so have a total of sixteen to complete. I have already passed my first exam and am now studying towards my second. I am enrolled in an online tuition programme, so studying is flexible, allowing you to fit in lectures around the 9-5:30 working day. Although it can be tough, the reward of being one step closer to qualifying makes it worthwhile.

Good luck with your application and I hope to be working with you at Isosceles soon.
